Subject Index, Volume 2

CHILDREN'S LITERATURE

Cianciolo, Patricia, The Example Is Vitally Important! 75

Favat, F. Andre, Achieving a State of Grace, 136

COMPOSITION

Finder, Morris, Written Composition in the Methods Course, 158

Martia, Dominic, A Response to "Grade Beans, Not Themes," 45

Sharp, Donald B., "Grade Beans, Not Themes"—Another Response, 173

CURRICULUM

Botts, Roderic, Pursuing Relevance or Preserving Tradition, 126

O'Reagan, Austin, Everyone, to the Rescue, 165

EVALUATION

Erickson, John E., Three Measures of a Teacher's Potential, 95

HIGHER EDUCATION

Martin, Warren Bryan, Prophets Whisper Fearful Change, 5

IN-SERVICE EDUCATION

Botts, Roderic, Pursuing Relevance or Preserving Tradition, 126

O'Reagan, Austin, Everyone, to the Resuce, 165

LITERATURE

Hook, Frank, The Anthology: To Be or Not To Be, 105

Purves, Alan C., Inside Every Poem, There Is a Human Being Trying to Get Out, 117

METHODS COURSES

Davis, James E., Nesting in the Gale: The Process Approach in the Methods Course, 150

Finder, Morris, Written Composition in the Methods Course, 158

Ojala, William T., The English Methods Course: One Course or Three? 31

OBJECTIVES

Blake, Robert W., Behavioral Objectives and the Teaching of English, 64

RESOURCES FOR TEACHERS

Harvey, Robert C., Teaching ERIC, 25

Kirkton, Carole Masley, An ERIC Guide to Microteaching Evaluation, 142

SPEECH

Fernandez, Thomas L., English and Speech: Where Do We Go from Here? 84

TEACHER EDUCATION

Booth, Martha, So You Want to Teach English? 57

Du Charme, Edward R., The English Doctorate: "More" Further Reflections, 40

Hipple, Theodore W., The English Teacher Should Major in Education, 35

Josephs, Lois, Kay Hebert and Judy Johnston, A Triple-T Program in English, 18

Tuttle, Donald R., Should the English Teacher Major in Education? 100

TEACHING ENGLISH

Blake, Robert W., Behavioral Objectives and the Teaching of English, 64

Booth, Martha, So You Want To Teach English? 57

Peters, William H., Discovery Learning in the Classrom: Fact or Fiction? 89

Author Index, Volume 2

Blake, Robert W., Behavioral Objectives and the Teaching of English, 64

Booth, Martha, So You Want to Teach English? 75

Botts, Roderic, Pursuing Relevance or Preserving Tradition? 126

Cianciolo, Patricia, The Example Is Vitally Important! 75

Davis, James E., Nesting in the Gale: The Process Approach in the Methods Course, 150

Ducharme, Edward R., The English Education Doctorate: "More" Further Reflections, 40

Erickson, John E., Three Measures of a Teacher's Potential, 95

Favat, F. Andre, Achieving a State of Grace, 136

Fernandez, Thomas L., English and Speech: Where Do We Go from Here? 84

Finder, Morris, Written Composition in Methods Courses, 158

Harvey, Robert C., Teaching ERIC, 25

Hebert, Kay, see Josephs, Lois

Hipple, Theodore W., The English Teacher Should Major in Education, 35

Hook, Frank, The Anthology: To Be or Not To Be, 105

Johnston, Judy, see Josephs, Lois

Josephs, Lois, A Triple-T Program in English, 18

Kirkton, Carole Masley, An Eric Guide to Microteaching Evaluation, 142

Martia, Dominic, A Response to "Grade Beans, Not Themes", 45

Martin, Warren Bryan, Prophets Whisper Fearful Change, 5

Ojala, William T., The English Methods Course: One Course or Three? 31

O'Reagan, Austin, Everyone, to the Rescue, 165

Purves, Alan C., Inside Every Poem, There is a Human Being Trying to Get Out, 117

Peters, William H., Discovery Learning in the Classroom: Fact or Fiction? 89

Sharp, Donald B., "Grade Beans, Not Themes"—Another Response, 173

Tuttle, Donald R., Should the English Teacher Major in Education? 100